Local Business People Form Association To Meet Credit Laws

Truckee Business Woman Elected to Head Regional Credit Organization.

In order to comply 100 per cent with the terms of the new federal regulations governing credits, merchants of Truckee and Lake Tahoe met Tuesday night at Capitol Hall and formed the Merchants' Protective Association and made tentative plans for enforcing the regulations which are defined under federal rules effective May 6.

Mrs. Sig Ulland was elected permanent chairman of the local association and Mrs. R. C. Gregory will act as the temporary secretary. Other necessary officers and committees will be named at the next meeting to be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Capitol Hall.

The necessity of such an organization, not alone from the standpoint of the merchants but the consumer as well, is obvious. The regulations set forth very definite rules which are manditory and in order to acquaint the buying public with the laws as well as to protect the merchants against credit losses, organizations are vital to the success of the program.

More than 20 merchants attended Tuesday's meeting to outline tentative plans for operation and to discuss the setting up of a central bureau through which credit information might be tabulated and passed on to other merchants in the area.

The program will be regulatory and will not impose undue hardships upon those desiring the convenience of normal, sound and reasonable extension of credit.

A committee comprising D. C. Turnage of Tahoe, E. L. Loynd, Elden Tonini, Clarence Osborn and the president was named to formulate a plan of operation. This committee will report at Tuesday's meeting and everyone is urged to attend.

by WALTER M. BARRETT

With the Japs making attacks on the North American continent, keeping their whereabouts a secret, all California districts are on the alert and in Truckee the civilian defense council is recognizing the danger and has issued a new and temporary air raid and blackout warning. F. W. Gaiennie, local defense council chairman, warns that the blast of the fire siren and train whistle designate a blackout, regardless of whether or not it is also a fire warning. All residents are asked to extinguish all lights at night when the siren sounds. Other devises are unreliable and this is used only as a temporary measure, but must be rigidly observed.

* * * *

The etsablishment of a credit rating organization in the area is designed solely for meeting requirements of the federal government and not to work any hardship or inconvenience on customers or merchants. Properly administered, as it must be, the plan should prove invaluable to both buyer and seller.

* * * *

The attack on Dutch Harbor yesterday should remind us again that we are not without danger of attack from the Japs and this brings to attention once more the vital need for careful manning of ground observation posts. We are inclined to get lax occasionally when things run too smoothly, but the affair near Alaska should be a warning that this is no time to get careless. The observation posts are doing a marvelous job and must keep it up to insure safety from the treacherous enemy.

Smith Unopposed In Try For Third Term As Justice Of Peace

Eight-Year Record Of Service Is Basis For Smith Campaign.

Justice of the Peace Charles E. Smith this week announced he will be a candidate to succeed himself at the August 25 primary election.

Smith has served as justice for the Meadow Lake Township for two four-year terms and his administration of the duties of the office have been handled with dispatch and fairness both in civil and criminal cases.

The incumbent's name will be the only one on the primary ballot as the time for judicial filings was closed May 22 and any opposition must be written in but this is not likely in view of the splendid record made by Smith during his incumbency.

Scores of cases are handled each month by the local justice court and despite the fact that many of them offer difficult complications, no decision by Judge Smith has been reversed by the higher courts. Thousands of dollars have been collected and the accounts have always been handled expediently and without confusion.

The candidate is long-time resident of Truckee and is widely and favorably known. He seeks return to office on the basis of his past record.

Ted Kohler, Jr., Enters Race For County Office

Theo. A. (Ted) Kohler, Jr., one of the most popular young men of Nevada county, has tossed his hat into the political ring with the announcement that he will be candidate for the office of public administrator at the August primary election.

Kohler, member of a pioneer Nevada county family, is at present employed by the Idaho-Maryland Mines in its accounting department. He seeks the office on the belief the younger generation should take a more active part in the political life of the county and hopes to merit the support of the voters on that basis as well as his qualifications for the office.

The candidate attended Grass Valley schools and received a business education at Mt. St. Mary's Academy in that city.

For several years Kohler was connected with the advertising staff of the San Francisco Chronicle, returning to Grass Valley two years ago to make his home. Shortly after his return he obtained his present position.

Kohler is well known in fraternal circles. He is a past master of the Grass Valley DeMolay ad at present holds the third vice presidency in Quartz Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West. He also is a member of the Grass Valley Elks Lodge.

Kohler promises to conduct the office of public administrator in a capable manner if elected and his many friends believe his candidacy is deserving of support.

"Doolittle and Do It Now"

Brig.-Gen. James H. Doolittle

When Brigadier General James H. Doolittle and his 79 American fliers skimmed over the housetops of Tokio and dropped bombs on Japanese docks, ships and munition plants the first installment was paid in avenging the treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor. For two days the fires from Doolittle's bombs devastated Tokio's war industrial plants and those of other Nipponese cities. Tojo's propagandists attempted in vain to stem the panic of the people by trying to belittle the importance of the attack. But the war lords of Tokio know that attack will be repeated—that American bombers will return again and again and the day of vengeance for Pearl Harbor is in sight.

The Medal of Honor for General Doolittle and the Distinguished Service Cross for each of his intrepid aviators, bestowed by President Roosevelt, represent every loyal American citizen's gratitude for this most brilliant exploit in aviation history.

OUR SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE

It is psychologically impossible, experts tell us, for a man's mind t remain disturbed over personal troubles while he is battling it out with a mountain trout or stalking a deer. And so, for the good of their war-taut nerves as well as for pleasure, Californians and their guest workers of shipyard and factory might do well to hit the trail in this state's paradise for nimrod and angler.

California has 25,000 miles of fresh water streams; 5,000 natural lakes in which trout are planted annually; 1,000 miles of seacoast offering abalone, clams and crab with deep sea fishing, surf casting and salmon trolling. Big game animals number 535,000! Eighty-six thousand duck hunters have California licenses! It is possible to fish or hunt for some species of game every day of the year.

Just pack up your war troubles in your old kit bag—and go fishing.

MEXICO TAKES HER STAND

With Mexico, one of the greatest of Latin American powers, having declared war on the Axis, the Western Hemisphere now presents a nearly united fighting front against its common enemy.

The destruction of Mexican lives and shipping by enemy submarines, and the insolent rejection on Mexico's protest to Germany, were the immediate steps leading to the formal declaration of war. But long before this Mexico had given its pledge of allegiance to the struggle of the United Nations. To Mexico's eloquent young foreign minister, Ezequiel Padilla, goes much of the honor for bringing about a notable demonstration of unity among Pan-American nations at the Rio conference last January.

America's Good Neighbor Policy is not a miracle-working salve, able over-night to heal old wounds completely, but it has gone far to encourage a more friendly working partnership among the nations of this hemisphere. Contrast our relations with Mexico in the present war with the unhappy state of affairs prevailing in the last World War when our two countries took up arms against each other.

Today, against the common enemy, our neighbor republic is fully allied with us for the first time in history. To all free, enlightened people in this hemisphere and outside it, it has become self-evident that only a victory of the United Nations can assure freedom and the hope of progress.

MY PLACE IN THE SUN

by DOUG BARKETT

Slice of conversation o'erheard in a local business house: She "Where would you men be if you didn't have us women to sew buttons on your clothes?" He "If it weren't for you women, we men wouldn't need buttons on our clothes." Whether you agree or not, the logic is sound.

Notes on the cuff for remembrance: Don't forget happy birthdays to Rose Petroni, Dolly Henderson, Laura Angelini and Liz Gates all in the current week....Remember the Junior-Senior-Alumni banquet tonite at Captiol Hall....and the high graduation and dance Sateve....and the grammar school commencement tomorrow.

Under the heading of Lions Hilife last week I neglected to mention that Melva Leitch was crowned Queen of the May at the River House shindig a fortnight ago. The oversite was not intended. Sorry, Queenie!

STREET SEENS: Glamaguy Milt Shontz giving Farmer Frankie Titus a few pointers on the wiles of women....Tina Bowers boarding a bus for the hinterlands....and Dot Barrett likewise a couple of mornings earlier....dropping her white chapeau in a mud hole as she climbed aboard....Cinemagnet Vern Shattuck and "Smiling Orlie" Sanders home from the north with their antelope ....Postmaster Elizabeth Bavier and Clara Greene cleaning up Sat'd'y morn after an Eastern Star wingding Frideve....Red and Phil Jolley back at the old stamping grounds after spending the first six months of winter in Colorado....Duane Freeman drivin' Fontana's Laundry truck ....and Nat Quilici airing someone's dirty linen on Commercial Row.... Johnny Saibini up from Vallejo with a catch in his gettalong from a broken ankle....which should remind us all not to drag our feet.

I was in the grammar school not long back and happened to stop and look at the dedication plaque in the main hall. Among other data were the names of the then board of trustees—Tim O'Hanrahan, Robt. A. Tonini and Mrs. Dan D. Smith. It then dawned on me that the recent appointment of Elden Tonini to the board to fill the unexpired term of Clarence Bowers carried on a family tradition of community service. Those of us who knew Bob Tonini knew a man who was conscientious to a fault and a citizen without peer. Elden has filled his shoes in more ways than one in our community and this latest accpetance of thankless responsibility has carried the parallel just one step further. He has been on the board just long enough to make us all feel that he should be retained until his son, Bobby, can take his place.

THE MAN AT THE KEYHOLE

by OPERATIVE WB

Governor Olson's indignant condemnation of candidates who cross-file and run on more than one ticket (his name will appear only on the Democratic ballot) brought smiles to politicos with sharp memories. Reason: In 1938, Mr. Olson cross-filed himself, seeking both the Democratic and Progressive nominations for governor. He lost the Progressive nomination to Ray Haight, but won in the final.

The Japs certainly have played hob with politics. Except for limited stock in the hands of retailers, there's no tin to be had for campaign buttons.

What's this? What's this? Yep, the political poll-takers are already at it! And some of the first tallies are staggering indeed. They indicate: 1.—That the voters are going to be death on all public office holders whom they suspect of playing opltics with the war effort. 2.—That the old crack about not changing horses in the middle of the stream doesn't seem to apply this year when most folks expect to end up pedestrians.

Mark Twain at Tahoe

Samuel L. Clemens (1835-1910), who was one of America's foremost men of letters, writing under the nome de plume of Mark Twain, was at one time in his career the editor of the Territorial Enterprise of Virginia City, Nev. During his editorship there he was a frequent visitor at Lake Tahoe and once wrote the folowing essay on the beauties of that world-famous lake:

"....That is all very well, except the 'clear' part of the lake. It certainly is clearer than a great many lakes, but how dull its (Lake Como) waters are with the wonderful transparence of Lake Tahoe! I speak of the north shore of Tahoe, where one can count the scales on a trout at a depth of a hundred and fifty feet....

"ePople talk of the transparent waters of the Mexican Bay of Acapulco, but in my own experience I know they cannot compare with those I am speaking of. I have fished for trout in Tahoe, and at a measured depth of eighty-four feet, I have seen them put their noses to the bait and I could see their gills open and shut. I could hardly have seen the trout themselves at that distance in the open air....

"The celebrated Sea of Gallee is not as large as Lake Tahoe by a good deal—it is just two-thirds as large. And when we come to speak of beauty, this sea is now more to be compared with Tahoe than a meridian of longitude is to a rainbow. The dim waters of this pool cannot suggest the limip brilliancy of Tahoe; these low, shaven hillocks of rocks and sand, so devoid of perspective, cannot suggest the grand peaks that compass Tahoe like a wall, and whose ribbed and chasmed fronts are clad with stately pines that seem to grow smaller and smaller as they climb, till one might fancy them reduced to weeds and shrubs far upward, where they join the everlasting snows. Silence and solitude brood over Tahoe; and silence and solitude brood over this lake of Genessaret. But the solitude of the one is as cheerful and fascinating as the solitude of the other is dismal and repellant.

"In the early morn one watches the silent battle of dawn and darkness upon the waters of Tahoe with a placcid interest; but when the shadows skulk away and one by one hidden beauties of the shore unfold themselves in the full splendor of noon; when the still surface is belted like a rainbow with broad bars of blue and green and white, half the distance from circumference to center; when, in the lazy summer afternoon, he lies in a boat, far out to where the dead blue of the deep water begins, and smokes the pipe of peace and idly winks at the distant crags and patches of snow from under his cap-brim; when the boat drifts shoreward to the white water, and he lolls over the gunwale and gazes by the hour down through the crystal depths and notes colors of the pebbles and reviews the finny armies gliding in procession a hundred feet below; when at night he sees moon and stars, mountain ridges feathered with pines, jutting white caps, bold promontories, grand sweeps of rugged scenery topped with bald glimmering peaks, all magnificently pictured in the polished mirror of the lake, in richest, softest detail, the tranquil interest that was born with the morning deepens and deepens, by sure degrees, till it culminates at last in restless fascination."

Summer Resident Passes Away

CARNELIAN BAY, June 4— Death last week claimed Mrs. Charles Pettit, for many years a resident of the Tahoe area. Local Laundry Member Of International Trade Group

Fontana's Laundry & Dry Cleaning of Truckee has been accepted into full membership by the American Institute of Laundering, research and industry representative of a majority of North America's 7,000 professional laundries.

This announcement was received from George H. Johnson, general manager of the Institute, which has its million-dollar headquarters, laboratory and model plant in Joliet, Ill.

The Institute is international in scope, directly representing professional launderers of the United States and Canada, and has active members in 21 foreign nations.

An outgrowth of one of the oldest trade associations in th United States, the Institute was formed in 1920 to answer, through thorough scientific research, the laundering problems which were bothring launderers and laundry customers. And in the present war emergency one of its valuable contributions is the advice provided for conservation by the public of its wearing apparel and fabrics.

In addition to its completely equipped testing and research laboratories at Joliet, the Institute maintains five service departments for consultative assistance to members. These include laundry plant operation, management fabric analysis for all factors influencing launderability, accounting, advertising and sales promotion.

The model laundry plant at Joliet is used for practical tests of fabrics, of wahroom procedures and of management problems.

One of the latest and most basic activities of the Institute is its program for teting all types of launderable merchandise and approving those which pass successfully. Thorough laboratory tests supplement a series of launderings under actual conditions, determining such essential factors as the quality of cloth, the color fastness of fabric, trimmings, thread and buttons, the shrinkage, the construction of finished product and general launderability.

Products passing these tests are awarded the Laundry-Tested and Approved Seal of the Intitute. Constant rechecking of the product insures maintenance of the Institute's high standards.

This rapidly expanding program serves the consumer as a guide to washable merchandise that is really launderable. It is a help to the manufacturer in the development of products—before they go on sale—which will fulfill his promises of launderability.

In addition, the Institute helps place the blame for damage which may occur to customer's goods, making authoritative reports on whether the customer's habits may have injured the fabric or whether the particular goods were at fault because of some inherent weakness in the product.

The American Institute of Laundering also maintains a School of Laundry Management in which are trained men who will manage tomorrow's plants.

The professional laundry industry now ranks sixth in the nation in number of persons employed and is rated a half-billion-dollar industry.

Beer Buyers Urged To Get Bigger Bottles; Conserve Caps

Here's another way that housewives can do their bit in America's war effort and save money at the same time; buy beer in quart and half-gallon bottles. oFr Uncle Sam has rationed bottle caps, and the only way that everyone can continue to enjoy the sprakling refreshment of beer is by "streching out" the available supply of caps. This can be done, if we'll all cooperate and buy larger size bottles. For, when you buy a quart bottle you are making one cap do the work of three. If you buy a half-gallon size, you make one cap do the work of six.

As a matter of fact, when beer was first bottled shortly after the turn of the century, the only size was the quart bottle. It has only been in the past few years that smaller size bottles have come into vogue. So, because of wartime restrictions, we are merely getting back to what was originally considered the logical size.

Buying the quart or the half-gallon bottles is both patriotic and economical. There is a very real saving in buying the larger sizes, especially in case lots, as many housewives were finding out even before bottle cap rationing brought the issue more forcefully to attention. In addition, it is usually far more convenient to use larger size bottles for home entertaining, for barbecues and picnics where you are serving three or more people. It does seem silly to have to take off six bottle caps to serve half a dozen drinks, when the same amount of beer can be poured by merely taking off one cap from a half-gallon bottle, doesn't it? So, save metal for Uncle Sam and money for yourself by buying beer in larger bottles whenever possible.

INCOME TAX REPEAL

SACRAMENTO, June 4 —(U.P.)— Those sponsoring the initiative to repeal the state income tax declare they have more than 275,000 signatures and will have about 350,000 by the time the petitions are filed, whereas only 212,000 valid names are required. If the names turn out to be satisfactory, the proposition will appear on the November ballot. The sponsors eclare that state levy is un necessary and taxpayers have enough burden with federal assessments.

Please start your railroad trip on a Tuesday

—or Wednesday, or Thursday

If you are planning a trip by train, we hope you will try to leave on a week-day, to relieve the week-end burden on our trains.

It's a good idea from your own standpoint to leave on a week-day, as you will be more apt to get just the accommodations you want.

Also, we hope you will consider the advantages of traveling later in the year, instead of in June, July or August. Vacation places are less crowded after the summer season. And in this glorious West of ours, many regions are at their best in the fall or winter.

The armed forces have first call on our trains. We know you want it that way. So we will appreciate it if you do everything you can to cooperate with them, and with us.

Please make your reservations well in advance

We hope you will make your Pullman reservations well in advance. And if after making reservations, you decide not to go, let us know promptly, so the space can be used by other travelers.
